Sawblade Software Donates Portion of Revenue to the World Food Programme

Lake Forest, CA -- February 20, 2009 -- Macintosh software developer Sawblade Software has donated $2,635.80 to the United Nations World Food Programme, one of the most important organizations in the fight against global hunger.

"Our Power Game Factory software has sold well, so there is an imperative to do something useful with the proceeds," says Sawblade Software founder Jesse Simko. "In researching charitable organizations, it became clear that the WFP makes efficient use of its funds. It not only provides meals, but also works to address the root causes of hunger. When Sawblade Software launched I promised to devote some of the revenue to this cause, and now I'm paying up."

Simko hopes his company can contribute more in the coming years. "What we've been able to donate this year has set the standard against which Sawblade Software will measure its success in the future."
